How the balance shifted, weighted by locality size

Same change in coalition–opposition balance, 2022 → 2026, with each locality weighted by its number of eligible voters in 2022, so large cities count for more than villages. A change of −0.10 means the gap between the two blocs moved 10 points toward the opposition.

Diamond: weighted mean · whiskers: 95% CI · box: middle half of voters, thin line: weighted median · dot area: eligible voters

Balance = (coalition − opposition) ÷ (coalition + opposition) votes; Arab-party and other votes are excluded. Groups use 2022 results only. Weights: 2022 eligible voters; CI uses the effective number of localities.

2022 coalition: Likud, Religious Zionism, Shas, UTJ. Opposition: Yesh Atid, National Unity, Yisrael Beiteinu, Labor, Meretz.

2026 coalition: Likud, Shas, UTJ, Otzma Yehudit, Religious Zionism, Noam. Opposition: Yashar, Beyachad, the Democrats, Yisrael Beiteinu. HaMiluimnikim & HaKalkalit and Amcha Yisrael are unclassified.

Sources: Central Elections Committee 2022 final results; CEC 2026 results by locality, all boxes counted (31 Oct 2026, not yet certified). n = 1,212 localities.